5.0 ENCAMPMENT HONOR CODE

5.1 The Encampment Honor Code “We will not Lie, Steal, or Cheat, nor tolerate among us anyone who does.” The purpose of the Honor Code is to foster an environment based upon a personal sense of honesty, integrity, and responsibility. Implementation of the Honor Code means you will be trusted to do what is right and must confront those who violate these standards. An honor code violation constitutes a Class A offense. If you think a violation has occurred or if you have a question about the Honor Code, talk to your 7 flight cadre. Remember that not tolerating violations is just as important as every other part of the honor code.

1. Lying – Lying is any statement of untruth, which is meant to deceive or mislead. One example of lying at Encampment is intentionally hiding contraband from senior members during the contraband check.

2. Stealing – Anyone who wrongfully takes, obtains, or withholds someone else's property without their permission, with the intent to temporarily or permanently deprive another of such property, is guilty of stealing.

3. Cheating – In essence, cheating is taking unfair advantage of another. Cheating violates the competitive sense of "fair play." An example of cheating at Encampment is looking at another cadet's test while completing the final exam.

4. Toleration – Toleration means enduring without complaint. If you know a cadet has lied, stolen, or cheated, and you fail to report or confront the matter, you are guilty of toleration, therefore breaking the honor code.

6.0 FIRE PROCEDURES

6.1 If the fire alarm sounds or if a fire threat is imminent, do the following:

1. If the alarm sounds during the night, don't attempt to put your uniform on. Exit the building as quickly as possible. You must be sure that your roommate has exited as well.
2. Once you exit, listen carefully for the instructions given by your flight cadre. Make your way to the pre-determined emergency meeting location.
3. Push blankets to the foot of your bed when you get out of it so that the flight cadre clearing rooms can complete room clearance quicker.
4. Flight cadre and senior cadre will direct you as to which way to exit. All barracks have many exits so if one is blocked stay calm and listen for instructions.
5. Always wear PT sweatpants and a T-shirt when sleeping in the barracks in case you must leave the building quickly.
